Glossary

Managing Diversity

The concept of managing diversity accepts that the workforce consists of a diverse population of employees and members and users will also be diverse. This diversity consists of visible and non-visible differences, including factors such as gender, age, background, race, disability, mental health status, personality and work style. It is founded on the belief that harnessing these differences will create a productive environment where everybody feels valued and where talents are being fully used to meet organisational goals.

Equal Opportunities

Treating everybody fairly and equally regardless of their background or lifestyle.

Protected Characteristics (as defined by the Equality Act 2010)

Age
Disability
Gender
Gender reassignment
Marriage and civil partnership
Pregnancy and maternity
Race
Religion and belief
Sexual orientation

Newton and Noss Parish Council is committed to protect the following additional characteristics:

Diagnosis of a mental illness
Those living with HIV and other blood borne viruses

Direct Discrimination

Direct discrimination occurs when a person is treated less favourably than another because of a protected characteristic. For example, Person A discriminates against Person B because person B cares for a disabled person but is not disabled themselves.

Indirect Discrimination

This includes practices which look fair, but which are unfairly discriminatory in their effect. For example, a job may include a provision, criterion or practice that is discriminatory in that it puts a person with a protected characteristic at a particular disadvantage when compared to someone who does not have that protected characteristic.

Disability Discrimination

Disability discrimination occurs when, for a reason related to his/her disability, a disabled person is treated less favourably than other people, and this treatment cannot be justified unless it is a proportionate means of achieving a legitimate aim. It also occurs when an employer or service provider fails to comply with the duty to make reasonable adjustment in relation to the disabled person, and the failure cannot be justified.

Reasonable Adjustment

An employer has a duty to make reasonable adjustments when either a provision, criterion or practice or a physical feature of the premises puts a disabled person at a substantial disadvantage compared to persons who are not disabled. The employer must take such steps as it is reasonable to avoid the disadvantage to the disabled person.

Hate Crimes

Definition: A racist, religiously aggravated, faith, gender, disability, transphobic or homophobic incident which constitutes a criminal offence. These include:

Physical attacks;
Offensive letters, e-mails and phone calls;

Offensive leaflets or posters;
Groups of people intimidating or bullying you at work;
Verbal abuse or threats.

Victimisation

Victimisation occurs when a person is treated less favourably than another because that person has, for example, asserted rights under any of the discrimination laws or has helped another person to assert such rights or given information to the relevant statutory body, or because it is suspected that the person might do any of these things.

Harassment

Harassment occurs when a person engages in unwanted conduct related to a relevant protected characteristic and the conduct has the purpose or effect of violating that person's dignity, or creates an intimidating, hostile, degrading, humiliating or offensive environment for that person. If the conduct is unintentional then considerations of reasonableness apply, i.e. the perception of the person being harassed, the other circumstances of the case and whether it is reasonable for the conduct to have that effect.

Agreed and adopted by Newton & Noss Parish Council 22 September 2016.
